ropes and he had just as soon fight a regiment as the one lonely individual before him.

According to Delaney, and he probably knows more about the champion than anybody, Jeffries will take any kind of a chance of personal injury with the secret hope of being hurt, so that he can discontinue his work and get out of fighting. Not that he is afraid to fight, but can't endure the work of training.

"Wou know," explains Delaney, "Jeff does for a dime anyway. All he wants is his ease and leisure."

"Coffroth was completely knocked out He went off to a nearby stumn and aut thought of the scheme.

Ill was coming from the East to see you, and most of them."

"That's right," meditated the stubborn champion. "If that's the way it is, I guess I will go ahead and fight."

Here was a big, brawny fellow who didn't care a snap of his finger for losing 320,000, but he couldn't stand to see a friend disappointed.

This information comes from Billy Delaney via Harry Pollok, who has just returned from Los Angeles where he and the champion's old manager and trainer wrestled with him for two or three days in an effort to rope him into a fight at Gold Fields.

To Jeffries the ring has no glamor. But, as to condition, he could go in and fight a good battle with less than a month s training. He won't do it though because he doesn't need the money.
